Guidelines for parents & guardians regarding transportation of their children.

1. Dutch Law

In The Netherlands parents and legal guardians are responsible for the care and safety of their children until twenty one years of age. The Dutch Civil law states that parents are first and foremost responsible for the mental and physical wellbeing of their children.

All parents do have access to information about parenting. There are different regional (digital) parenting manuals. They contain useful advice and tips for parents about positive upbringing. Some of the examples (in Dutch):

2. Amstelland International School Policy

AIS require all parents and legal guardians to personally accompany their children to and from school on a daily basis.

- All children under the age of 11 years require adult supervision when travelling to and from the school campus.
- Siblings above the age of 18 years are permitted to accompany children under the age of 12, to and from the school campus with written permission from a parent or legal guardian.
- Children above the age of 11 years are permitted to travel to and from the school campus independently with written permission from a parent or legal guardian.

3. Special requests

If a parent or legal guardian is in need of assistance from a family member, friend, neighbour or peer at AIS, a special request can be submitted to the Director regarding the transport and child care of the student.

- Playdate arrangements are required to be sent through by email to the classroom teacher before the morning drop off and afternoon pick up.
- Written permission for alternative arrangements are required to be emailed to school regarding any changes in the drop off and pick up routine of the child.
- In situations where a parent or legal guardian is physically unable to accompany a child to school, a meeting is required to be scheduled with the Director. Alternative arrangements can be made temporarily to ensure the safety of the child.
